Probation

The probation period is six months. During probation an employee can resign, and the company can dismiss, with two weeks' notice.

Notice periods after probation

After probation the notice period for an employee who resigns is four weeks to the 15th or to the end of a calendar month. The company's notice period grows with the years of service: two months after five years, four months after ten years.

Expense claims

Submit expense claims within 30 days. See the Travel Policy for the limits.
